

SMITH IS GIVEN PARTY BACKING AT UTAH PARLEY

Governor's Candidacy for Presidency Approved at Conference of Democrats of Seven States.

UTAH DELEGATES OPPOSE ACTION

Only Woman Delegate to Meeting Declares That Liquor Question Already Has Been Settled.

Ogden, Utah, September 23.—(AP)—After three hours' debate, the conference of democrats of western states today adopted a resolution endorsing the candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, as the party's presidential nominee in 1928. The vote was not unanimous. Utah delegates particularly opposed the action.

Delegates also attended from Idaho, Montana, Colorado, California, South Dakota and Wyoming.

After hearing one of its purposes outlined by Fred W. Johnson, Wyoming, as the formation "of a bloc that can be heard and heeded in the party convention," the committee on the order of business offered for favorable consideration this resolution:

"Whereas, it is the sense of this meeting, composed of active working democrats of the Pacific coast and Rocky Mountain states that Alfred E. Smith, of New York, represents the best traditions and ideals of the party, and is the most available candidate mentioned for the nomination for president of the United States.

"Now, therefore, be it resolved that, not intending to usurp in the least or any degree, the duties and prerogatives of the democratic organizations of these states, yet as party men and workers, we do hereby make it known to the people of the various communities from which we hail and to the voters of the United States, that we favor the nomination and election of Governor Smith as president of the United States.

The conference was attended by representatives who were invited by Fred W. Johnson, Wyoming, and John Chase, Utah. The invitations were directed to known party workers in ten states, and did not mention any particular candidate, but Johnson said before the meeting he expected Smith to be endorsed. Withdrawal of McClellan, he said, left no other candidate.

Discordant Note

The first discordant note to the Smith candidacy was sounded by L. H. Francisco, of San Diego, himself a candidate for the democratic nomination, and for a short time it seemed as though the Californian would not be given an opportunity to be heard. W. R. Chapman, Twin Falls, Idaho, however, counseled the meeting to give Francisco the floor, saying he believed any man who "is so ambitious as to seek the presidency of the United States is entitled to be heard at a democratic meeting."

Francisco said he believed it wrong to endorse any candidate at this time. He outlined his principles and plans for relieving the farmer and solving the prohibition question.

Another discordant note was sounded by Judge Joshua Greenwood, of Salt Lake City, who said he doubted whether if the republicans nominated Charles E. Hughes, Smith could carry his home state.

Storm of Protest

This brought a storm of protest from W. H. Maloney, Butte; T. S. Tallafarra, of Wyoming; Holton Davern, South Dakota, and Chapman, all of whom charged the Utahman with "making a fine republican speech."

John H. Moyle, Utah national committeeman, said he had been assured by Fred W. Johnson, sponsor of the meeting, that a resolution on the tariff, which he had been asked to prepare and present, would be given consideration.

"But I see, by the report of the committee on order of business," said Moyle, "that the tariff has no place on the program."

"This resolution does not represent the sentiment in Utah," Moyle continued. "Neither are you from your

Admiral's Attack On Navy's Policy May Bring Trial

Secretary Wilbur Is Seriously Considering Disciplinary Action Against Thomas P. Magruder.

LACK OF ECONOMY CHARGED TO NAVY

Alleged Extravagances of Department Assailed. Admiral Says He Does Not Fear Punishment.

Washington, September 23.—(AP)—Secretary Wilbur is seriously considering taking some disciplinary action against Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder for his recent article in the Saturday Evening Post, in which he assailed the navy as being over-organized and failing to practice economy. It was learned today at the navy department.

Secretary Wilbur declined to discuss the matter further except to say that the admiral had failed to abide by naval regulations requiring filing with the secretary of the navy of all military articles written by persons in the naval service.

Admiral Magruder has been in active naval service for 36 years. He was second in command of American naval forces in European waters during the war, receiving the distinguished service medal for his services.

NAVY DEPARTMENT STIRRED BY MAGRUDER

Washington, September 23.—(United News).—The navy department has been stirred by publication of an article in this week's Saturday Evening Post by Rear Admiral T. P. Magruder, commander of the Philadelphia navy yard, criticizing the conduct of the navy and charging wasteful and inefficient methods.

Admiral Magruder's outspoken criticisms revealed to the public the navy's former Brigadier General Mitchell made on the army two years ago, precipitating a bitter fight, a court-martial and his retirement from the army.

The navy department is investigating the matter now. Rear Admiral Magruder had not submitted the article for approval before publication as is required by the regulations. Secretary of the Navy Wilbur said. Whether the admiral would be subjected to discipline was not indicated.

Will Cause Debate

His criticisms, sharp and specific, are certain to be debated in earnest this winter. Magruder has been a naval officer for 36 years. He received the distinguished service medal for commanding coast patrol squadrons in French waters. His flagship was sunk in 1918.

"The navy is not obtaining the naval power justified by the general appropriations made thereby by the people of the United States," he said. "In indicating that there are, in my opinion, certain extravagances, in criticisms, if any, are for constructive reforms."

He said the navy needs more money for more men, for maintenance in case of a large number of destroyers now tied up, for expansion of aviation and for more light cruisers and submarines.

Magruder undertook to point out the navy's failure to completely demobilize after the war, continuance of an economical war-time methods, maintenance of superfluous navy yards, stations, and bases, and keeping ships in commission useless for war service.

He said there are 55 rear admirals requiring a large organization so that one-third can be kept at sea as the

FIGHT COMMISSION UPHOLDS DECISION FOR GENE TUNNEY

Flynn's Demand for Knockout Victory for Dempsey Is Denied by Chicago Fight Board.

BY WALTER ECKERSOLL. Chicago, September 23.—This commission will not change the decision handed down by the judges and referee of the Gene Tunney-Jack Dempsey fight on Soldier field Thursday night. This was the statement issued today by John Richeimer, chairman of the boxing commission, after he had heard that Dempsey intended to protest the decision. As soon as he learned of the former's champion's intended action, Chairman Richeimer called Dave Barry, the referee, and Paul Beeler, the timekeeper, to the commission offices. After the officials had been questioned they were complimented for their splendid work by the commission.

Warns Fighters

"One of my most emphatic instructions was in regard to a knock-down," Referee Barry said. "I told both men that in case of a knock-down the fighter who had scored the knock-down must retire to the farthest corner before I would start the count. When Dempsey knocked Tunney down in the seventh round he would not go back at my first command. When he finally did get into the corner, the timekeeper had tolled out four seconds. I then started my count at one and the timekeeper took it up at this point. Dempsey knew the rule. He had been champion and should know the rules of boxing."

Leo P. Flynn, who claims to be the manager of Dempsey, appeared at the commission offices this afternoon to

Rev. Willis J. Jordan Says He Will Return to Charlotte and Plead His Own Case.

PREACHER HELD AT GRAND RAPIDS

Columbus Wife Anxious To Testify Against Mate; Has Record of Marriage to Minister.

Grand Rapids, Mich., September 23.—(AP)—Declaring that if he has more than one wife he must have obtained the surplus mate while he was suffering from one of "my frequent spells of amnesia," the Rev. Willis J. Jordan, Columbus, Ga., preacher, announced tonight that he would not fight extradition to Charlotte, N. C. Jordan, who disappeared from his home in Columbus last week, was arrested here today for Charlotte officials who are understood to be en route to Grand Rapids. The southern officials did not specify the charge contained in a warrant issued in Charlotte.

The preacher was arrested at the home of Mrs. Ella Thomas here, and removed to the detention ward of a local hospital in the plea that he was ill.

"I have decided to go back and plead my own case before God, the judge, the jury and man, and tell them if there are any other marriage records against me it all happened while I was suffering from frequent spells of amnesia."

The preacher said his true wife is Mrs. Vesey V. Snyder Jordan, of Winding Gulf, W. Va. He told hospital attendants that she is in the care of the Rev. E. B. Ware, of Eperly, W. Va., his wife's brother.

In a telegram to church officials at Columbus, Jordan asked that a small amount of money be sent to him so he could return to that city and said that a hospital examination had revealed that he is suffering from amnesia, fright, shock and typhoid fever.

His physician, Dr. R. E. Scullery, failed, however, to find traces of any of the ailments mentioned with the possible exception of a slight attack of typhoid.

Police received a communication from Zion City, Ill., containing a picture of Jordan and a group picture of Jordan, a woman and four children, two girls and two boys. Jordan said that he has three children, Mrs. Louise Ower and Miss Florence and Wilbert Jordan, all of Zion City.

COLUMBUS WIFE HAS MARRIAGE RECORD

Columbus, Ga., September 23.—(AP)—The woman left here last week by Rev. Willis J. Jordan is anxious to go to Charlotte, N. C., to testify against the minister who was arrested in Grand Rapids, Mich., today on a bigamy charge. It was stated at her home tonight.

Just how Mrs. Jordan, formerly Mrs. Emma A. Landridge, of Washington, D. C., was finance her trip to Charlotte is not known as she said to be in great need of assistance, but she appears anxious to appear against the minister.

She has in her possession a mar-

COOLIDGE WANTS JARDINE TO KEEP POST IN CABINET

President Counting on Assistance of Farm Secretary; Pleased With Department Work.

Washington, September 23.—(AP)—President Coolidge is counting on the continued assistance of Secretary Jardine in dealing with the administration's farm problems and does not expect the agriculture secretary to yield to the overtures of a group of Florida fruit growers who would like to have him head a citrus cooperative association.

The president authorized the statement today that he not only expected Jardine to remain in the cabinet, but had great confidence in him and in his conduct of the department of which he is head. It was said at the white house that the president was particularly impressed with the manner in which the secretary had reorganized the department with a view to greater efficiency.

The white house pronouncement followed by a few hours a public demand by Representative Wilson, democrat, Mississippi, that Secretary Jardine be asked to resign because of the recent agriculture department statement on cotton. But the vice president's notice of this demand was taken by white house officials, however, and there was every evidence that the administration would regard the cotton statement and its effect on the market as a closed incident.

Officials have given no indication that the services of Jardine are in jeopardy. No direct notice of this demand was taken by white house officials, however, and there was every evidence that the administration would regard the cotton statement and its effect on the market as a closed incident.

The Florida fruit producers are understood to still be hopeful of obtaining the services of Jardine in a cooperative venture, although they have not been able to put their plans into final form.

NEW ARMS MEET SET DECEMBER 1

League Urged Not To Allow Move To Lag; Plea for World Dry League Deferred.

Geneva, Switzerland, September 23.—(AP)—Resumption of the League of Nations disarmament drive has been provisionally set to begin December 1. France and Germany joined today in a determined expression not to let things to lag, both fearing that delay would ruin the chances of eventual success and achieving a reduction in armaments.

The disarmament drive will be made by the so-called League of Nations preparatory commission on a disarmament conference of which the United States is a member. This commission failed last spring to frame a draft treaty considered justifying the convocation of an international conference. France is more immediately interested in security rather than disarmament than is Germany, which feels secure enough under the Locarno pacts, but is keen on getting her neighbors, especially France, to cut down armaments to a point approximating the low German military strength.

Both nations find satisfaction in having renewed disarmament efforts assured before the end of the year, but the French delegates are particularly pleased because the preparatory commission now will be asked to study the big problem of security, a point upon which France has long insisted. The United States will have an opportunity to join in this work which will be co-ordinated with the main disarmament effort.

SCANDINAVIANS SEEK WORLD DRY LEAGUE

Geneva, September 23.—(United News).—A League of Nations Anti-Saloon league is provided for in a resolution submitted to the league assembly by Finland, Poland and Sweden, with the support of Belgium, Denmark and Czechoslovakia.

The resolution asks the league council to create a commission of experts on alcohol to coordinate international action against bootlegging and against the abuse generally of alcoholic drinks.

It was decided to place the resolution on the agenda of the next assembly, meeting in September, 1928. France is certain to make a heated fight against action on it, and is sure of the support of other wine-producing countries.

Only a few days ago France led a fight that blocked a similar resolution, providing for league action against international bootlegging. It was held then that prohibition was a domestic matter, in which the league had no concern.

ATLANTA MOTHER FINDS CHILDREN AFTER 6 YEARS WHO STUMBLES; BELIEVING HER DEAD HE SLAYS SELF

HOUSTON FATHER WILL FIGHT TO RETAIN THEM ::

Children After 6 Years

Houston, Texas, September 23.—(AP)—Searching for six years in the United States and Canada, Mrs. Corbille Davis, of Atlanta, Thursday was reunited with her two children, William Verdier, 10, and Lorraine Verdier, 6, court records here today disclosed.

The children were found, Mrs. Davis said, in the custody of their father, William A. Verdier, Jr., Houston insurance solicitor. A bench warrant ordered him to produce them in court.

The separation of the family took place in Marietta, Ga., Mrs. Davis said, where she was ill in a hospital. She followed them to Alberta, Canada, and many other places after she had secured a divorce and custody of the children in a Georgia court. The father has engaged attorneys to fight the mother's claim for custody of the children.

DRUGGIST TAKES OWN LIFE WHILE BABY, 4, LOOKS ON

Mrs. Claude W. Hayes Dodges and Falls as Husband Shoots; He Believed Her Killed.

DOMESTIC TROUBLE GIVEN AS MOTIVE

Little Girl Screams "Daddy, Don't; Please Don't" as Father Reloads Shotgun.

Dr. Claude W. Hayes shot at his wife—and missed. In her terror, the woman faltered, stumbled and slipped to the floor. Believing her dead, the man, maddened by an impending separation, reloaded his shotgun and while his 4-year-old baby daughter screamed in a childish treble, "Daddy, don't do that, please don't do that," blew off the top of his head.

In a few seconds, the little family of a druggist, at 903 Baldwin place, was stricken by tragedy, the father lay dead on the front porch of their home. The mother was carried to St. Joseph's hospital with nervous prostration and two babies, Sarah Katherine, 4, and Claude, Jr., 18 months, are in the care of kindly neighbors until their mother shall return to face the ruins of her home life.

According to several neighbors, Dr. Hayes, who had been manager for some time of Welch's pharmacy at 837 Capitol avenue, and his wife, had been on the verge of separation, after six years of married life. Mrs. Hayes announced Thursday that she would seek rooms for herself and the children. It is believed that this statement made to her husband early Thursday evening led to the quarrel, attempted slaying and suicide, in the presence of the 4-year-old girl, J. H. Smith, who lived on the floor above the couple, stated that a slight scuffle preceded the shots.

The altercation took place at the front door leading to the porch. Dr. Hayes' body was found lying on the porch with the top of the head literally blown off. Neighbors immediately summoned the ambulance of Harry G. Poole and the body was taken to the undertaking parlors. Mrs. Hayes was rushed to St. Joseph's hospital in a hysterical condition, where drugs were administered before she could be quieted.

Two loaded shells were found in the pocket of Dr. Hayes' coat, one empty shell on the porch and one in the gun. Coroner Paul Donehue, notified of the tragedy, had not decided late Thursday night whether an inquest would be necessary.

Funeral arrangements for Dr. Hayes will await the recovery of his wife.

A plea of guilty to violating the Harrison narcotic act, entered by L. A. Singfield, one-legged morphine addict, was ordered withdrawn Friday by Judge Samuel H. Sibley, in federal court.

Cigarette Made Of Cotton Kills 7-Year-Old Boy

Cartersville, Ga., September 23.—(Special.)—An unusually horrible accident was reported today from the Herbert Uren farm in the Euclarest district in which William Milton Hugh Smith, seven-year-old son of Mr. A. E. Smith, lost his life about noon Thursday.

With other members of the family the lad was in the field picking cotton. No one was near him at the time, but it is believed he playfully took some cotton, rolled it up in paper cigarette fashion, and then attempted to light it with a match. The improvised cigarette suddenly blazed and his clothing ignited and the boy started running through the cotton field toward his home.

His grandmother, who was in the yard, heard his screams, and started toward him, but he broke away from her after she had been painfully burned and before any one could stop him the little fellow fell exhausted to the ground, his body badly burned. All efforts to revive him failed.

The mother of the lad is said to have died rather suddenly a few months ago. Surviving are his father, one sister and two brothers.

Miss Virginia Gibbons, Cartersville Pioneer, Is Taken by Death

Cartersville, Ga., September 23.—(Special.)—Miss Virginia Gibbons, 78, one of Cartersville's best-known women, died at her home on Market street here Thursday afternoon after a short illness. The immediate cause of her death was heart affection.

Miss Gibbons was born in Bridgewater county, Virginia, and with her parents, the late George R. and Harriett Rison Gibbons, came to Cartersville as a girl. She made her home at Bonnie Brook, the country estate of her parents, until 18 years ago when she, with other members of her family, became residents of Cartersville.

Surviving are three sisters, Mrs. R. I. Battle, Mrs. J. L. Irick and Miss Hattie M. Gibbons, all of Cartersville; two nephews, George Gibbons, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Felton Gibbons, of Bausette, Ark.; four nieces, Miss Annie Gibbons, of Bausette, Ark.; Misses Maggie and Irick and Mrs. Robert Renfro, of Cartersville.

Funeral arrangements, while not definitely completed, announce the funeral for Saturday afternoon, to be conducted by Rev. W. H. Clark, pastor of the Sam Jones Memorial Methodist church, of which the deceased had been a life-long member.

L. Duggan, state superintendent of schools.

This sum represents 15 per cent of the total apportionment to the counties for the year 1927. CHARLOTTE NEWS PRESIDENT PASSES

Charlotte, N. C., September 23.—(AP)—Funeral services for W. C. Dowd, Sr., president and general manager of the Charlotte News, will be held from the First Baptist church here at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Rev. Luther Little, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. Joseph A. Gaines, pastor of St. John's Baptist church, will be in charge of the services.

Dies After Short Illness.
Mr. Dowd died at 1:40 o'clock this morning at his home on Queens road after an illness of less than four hours. He had been in seemingly good health last night and yesterday told friends that he had not felt better in years. He played a golf game yesterday. At 7 o'clock this morning he was stricken while in bed at his home. At 9 o'clock his physicians, Dr. C. A. Montgomery, was summoned and an hour later he was pronounced dead. He was 62 years old and had been in the newspaper business for 30 years. He was a native of New York and had been in the state senate and the house of representatives from Mecklenburg county and was a presidential elector in 1904.

Active in Athletics.
Born in Moore county, March 21, 1865, his parents, Captain and Mrs. J. C. Dowd, came to Mecklenburg county while he was a boy. He was educated in the old Carolina Military academy and at Wake Forest college, being a member of the football team and active in college affairs.

After graduation he taught school for a time and then entered the newspaper business, buying a weekly paper. Later he bought the News, and after a time The Chronicle, consolidating them into the News and Chronicle, an afternoon paper.

He was first married November 23, 1892, to Miss Elsie Jordan Hart and of this union three children, W. Carey Dowd and Mrs. Morehead Jones, of Charlotte, and James Edward Dowd, of Richmond, Va., all survive. Mrs. Dowd died April 26, 1916.

In July, 1917, he married Miss Ellen Furness Cayles, of Montgomery, Ala., but a divorce was obtained and in July, 1924, he married Mrs. Thomas Turner, of High Point, who survives him.

representative states expressing the sentiment of your states. So why kid ourselves and try to tell the east there is a great wave of sentiment in the west for Al Smith for president?

"However, for me to express further opposition to the proposed resolution would be out of harmony and inappropriate. In time, I may be for him. I believe he is a progressive and a peace-loving man. The problems of the west as neither Cleveland nor Wilson understood them."

Mrs. D. M. Draper, the only woman speaker, expressed the belief that the rift between the west and the east would be solved by the benefit of the west through international trade, which also would solve the problem of the farmer. The liquor question had been settled, she said, "by being written into the constitution, and the religious issue has no place as a political issue in our democratic form of government."

DR. MONTAGUE NAMED ACTING MERCER HEAD

Macon, Ga., September 23.—(United News)—The board of trustees of Mercer university appointed Dr. A. P. Montague, vice president of the school, acting president to succeed Dr. Rufus Weaver, resigned, at its session here today.

Dr. Weaver leaves October 1 to become secretary of the Southern Baptist educational board at Birmingham.

With his appointment today, Dr. Montague becomes head of a southern college for the fourth time. He had been president of Columbia college in Florida; Howard, at Birmingham, and Furman at Greenville, S. C., before coming to Mercer in 1919 as professor of Latin and public speaking. He was made vice president in 1924.

WILBUR TO DISCIPLINE
ADMIRAL FOR ATTACK

law requires with the result that some have commands inferior to their rank. He said one vice admiral's fleet consisted of one light cruiser and six destroyers. One rear admiral commands four fuel and repair ships and five tugs. And each flag officer requires a large retinue of staff officers, clerks, servants and the like.

Attacks Typewriter Brigade.
The new aircraft carrier Saratoga is to have 62 typewriters aboard, the admiral added, related the "typewriter is mightier than the sword."

He said seven navy yards are maintained on the Atlantic coast, although the main fleet is now based in the Pacific. Three or four would be sufficient, he thought. His proposal that some of them be abandoned met with the reply from his superior that such a move would meet with political opposition. He said one navy yard had under repair during the first year at one time just one tug. For every dollar the navy spends on repairs it spends four dollars to keep up the overhauled necessary to make repairs.

He said when democrats got in power they would expand southern bases and when the republicans got in they would expand northern bases, all with regard to real needs.

DOES NOT FEAR DISCIPLINE, DECLARES ADMIRAL.
Philadelphia, September 23.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder has "no fear" of disciplinary action by Secretary Wilbur as a result of his article "The Navy and Economy," published in the Saturday Evening Post, he asserted tonight. Admiral Magruder is commander of the fourth naval district, which includes the Philadelphia navy yard.

"I am sure that no disciplinary action can be taken justly," the admiral said. "I have no fear whatsoever, and my conscience is clear. I only hope that my article will be of some good to the navy. That was my purpose in writing it."

Southeastern Fair Opens Within Less Than Week

Only one more week remains before the twelfth annual Southeastern fair will swing wide its gates October 1, to remain open through October 8, in one of the most complete arrays of exhibits that have ever been assembled here according to Arthur L. Brooke, president and J. Oscar Mills, secretary-manager, who are in charge of all details connected with the coming fair.

Both Mr. Brooke and Mr. Mills have spent much time during the past week at Lakewood, looking after the many details connected with the coming fair and after a careful inspection and check of the buildings and grounds, they were well pleased with the progress made thus far.

There is a continuous hum and hustle about the grounds, with workmen going about their jobs, and every detail may be completed before the exhibits begin to arrive during the middle of next week. All exhibitors are urged to have their exhibits in place by Saturday morning at 10 o'clock when the gates will be opened to start the huge crowds milling through the grounds and exposition buildings viewing the wonderful collection of 1927 exhibits.

Practically all of the buildings have been decorated and are ready for the exhibits and prospective exhibitors are urged to complete all arrangements with fair officials as early as possible. An efficient corps of workmen under the supervision of Joe Jordan have completely rewired the mile race track, and is rapidly nearing perfect condition for the automobile races which will be held Saturday, October 1, as the opening feature.

Bobby Henshaw Rev. Faust Says
Picked Dempsey;
To Push Peanut
Is Not Enough

Foolish bets are sometimes never paid, but there is one foolish bet made in Atlanta Thursday night over the results of Dempsey-Tunney prize fight that will be paid today and in full view of every Atlantian who desires to see the stunt.

The bet was between Vincent Lopez, nationally-known orchestra leader, and Bobby Henshaw, comedian, both now appearing at the Capitol theater and the loser to push a peanut with his nose from in front of the theater on Peachtree street to Ellis street, almost a half block away.

Lopez picked Tunney to win and Henshaw's choice, now a bad one, was Dempsey.

After a day of continuous razzing from employees and others at the theater over losing the freak bet, Henshaw will pay off in full today at 11 o'clock, proving the peanut does crack and crumble under the strain and has invited the public to witness the trick.

Hundreds of other freak bets on the fight have been paid and shortly after the returns were in Thursday night, an Atlanta man was seen to walk several blocks in a wheelbarrow.

THE BIG FIGHT.

Jack Dempsey made the gamut effort at a comeback ever staged in the sporting circles of this or any other nation.

That he was not knocked out in a victory in a way for him, though the decision at the end of the tenth and final round was a just and popular one.

The former champion was undoubtedly whipped to a frazzle. That Gene Tunney retains the championship is gratifying to a great majority of the American people.

He had a good war record, and is clean, intelligent, manly. His record shows he has never passed an unfair stroke.

The whole nation was literally fight-mad. No boxing contest in the history of this country, not even in the old days of John Sullivan and Jake Kilrain and Fitzsimmons and Corbett, and others, ever created half the interest.

With a "gate" that amounted to almost $3,000,000 all records were broken.

How many millions of dollars changed hands in bets will never be known. The figures would be staggering.

Tex Rickard gave the 140,000 fans who jammed and milled their way to the stadium and to the zone of the ringside what they were looking for.

It was a "party" in which statesmen and society leaders, and theatrical and movie stars, vied with the higher-ups in the underworld for positions of vantage.

The seventeen governors of that many states who were at the ringside yelled as lustily as did the newsmen who were shouting their "extras."

Through the newspaper extras, the radio, and the telegraph and the telephone the great battle was fought before countless thousands in every city and hamlet in America, and in the greater cities of the world.

When Tunney received his ninth count in the seventh it looked that he was whipped. A mighty roar shook the nation from the Dempsey fans.

But the champion's sensational comeback was like an earthquake as it rocked the very waters of the ocean and caused a pandemonium from the Goddess of Liberty to the Golden Gate.

There will be the usual howls from the fanatics and the reformers as to a nation's surrender to "such brutal sport."

Whole reams of paper will be used up in figuring how much good the cost of the great battle could have done in charity.

All of that, however, is now useless and senseless.

No one was compelled to buy a ticket or spend a nickel even for an "extra."

The people love prowess. It has come down to us through the ages. The old Roman gladiators drew their thousands to the arenas. The great terrors of Spain are more exalted than royalty.

FOR THE SOUTH'S PROGRESS.

It is heartening and promising to observe the profound interest being shown by official and civic bodies of Georgia in the forthcoming Southern Appalachian Power conference to be held in Chattanooga October 13-15, inclusive.

Governor Hardman, the Georgia association, the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and hosts of other agencies at work for the development of the state have appointed delegates, and the press is devoting much attention to the meeting.

The basis of America's economic ascendancy over the rest of the world is electric power. The average workman in this country has three-horse power at his command. This is the equivalent of thirty men.

Such a situation places man in his proper sphere as a director of machinery rather than as a machine himself. It recognizes the existence of his mind, and puts his mind—which is his most valuable faculty—to work rather than merely his muscles to work.

The unprecedented industrial development in the south in the past few years has been predicated upon a corresponding development in hydro-electric power. But for the latter there would have been no industry of consequence in the south. Hence the south's great interest in the approaching meeting which will consider the vital aspects of the problem of power.

No one group or interest will be represented. All shades of opinion will be given expression. Such men will take part as cabinet officials, ex-Governor John M. Parker, of Louisiana; Senator Sackett, of Kentucky; Editor Ocken, of the Electrical World; Governor Peay, of Tennessee; Director Paul S. Clapp, of the National Electric Light association; O. C. Merrell, of the federal power commission; Richard H. Edmonds, of the Manufacturers Record; Dr. Henry Mace Payne, of the American mining congress; Professor Stewart, of the University of Minnesota, and many others.

The conference, which probably will exceed 1,000 in number, will discuss the south's development, flood control, hydro-electric development, rural electrification, legislation and kindred subjects.

When we consider that electric power is less than 50 years old here indeed is a force whose liberating quality for mankind, in the field of labor and of science alike, seems without limit.

Barely more than a start has been made in developing electric power and putting it to work. What a future lies before us!

CAREY DOWD PASSES.

The death of W. C. Dowd, Sr., publisher of the Charlotte (N. C.) News, takes from southern journalism one of its best known, most forceful and most popular members.

For more than 30 years he had been editor of the News, though from failing health had not taken an active part in the editorial management for the past two years.

Up to that time he was an indefatigable worker, and was a power in North Carolina politics.

He served in the state senate and was several times mentioned for governor but declined to offer.

He built up the News from a small four-page daily to one of the best afternoon newspapers of his state and section.

He was active in the industrial development of Charlotte, and made an active campaign for the great progressive educational and road program North Carolina adopted.

He was a pleasing speaker, a forceful writer, and of striking personality. He had hosts of personal friends and loved their companionship.

He will be missed in North Carolina and missed in the fraternity.

A WORTHY HONOR.

Georgia's chief highway engineer, Warren R. Neel, has been named a director of the National Road association.

This is one of the greatest honors that has ever befallen a road official in the south and came entirely unsought, as Mr. Neel was requested to accept by telegraph.

It is an honor also to Georgia, and a worthy recognition of Mr. Neel's ability as a road builder, and of his general popularity among road builders throughout the country.

There are few, if any, better known state highway engineers in the United States than W. R. Neel.

Three gypsies were fined $10 or ten days for telling futures in New York city. Probably that will have a deterrent effect on the department of agriculture in disclosing cotton futures.

The death of a motorist in Georgia was caused by sticking his head out of the car to look at a sign board, according to the news story. Don't believe it. He was trying to get a look at the scenery.

Levine is to build an overseas plane with a wing spread of 480 feet. That's about the width he has been spreading on the first page.

A Georgia court resurrected an old state law which gives a "motorist one-half of the roadway. This is especially referred to drivers of five-ton trucks.

A friend who was on a wrecked train in the east said the damage was confined to the baggage car, which suffered materially. Most every trunk sprang a leak.

A knockout in a prize fight may not be classed by radio fans as a bedtime story, although one goes to sleep.

Miss Elder has been given her pilot's license after having proven adept in all the controls except the one marked "self."

A son of Georgia town says it is advanced by leaps and bounds. Dodging a bride-bound traffic?

The used car problem is getting as momentous as what to do with our ex-presidents.

THE WORLD'S LOOKING WINDOW

Endurance in Tasting.

The gourmets of Paris are getting worried about the French cuisine. They believe it is not as good as it used to be. They have been going around to the restaurants in all the restaurants and are not satisfied. It would appear that the French kitchen is becoming more industrialized. Restaurants which used to have a select clientele, now have to cater to a large and changing public, which as a rule doesn't know anything about the fine points of eating. To prevent the decay of the French kitchen there was organized, some time ago "Le Club des Cents" all gourmets who made a business of keeping up the old traditions. Further, to encourage the art of cooking there is the "Grand Prix de Cuisine." The examinations are just beginning to take place and the jury are deciding what cooks can compete. A great deal of discussion has taken place because the jury had to decide by tasting exactly the same dish prepared by a great number of applicants. In one case they had to try eighteen different dishes of "sole bonne femme," and it is argued that if the eighteen that made the finest dish of sole bonne femme ever concocted in a French kitchen, it was bound to be tasteless by the time the jury had sampled seventeen other dishes of the same thing. However the idea is simply to stimulate the art of cooking and encourage inventiveness as against commercialization.

Daudet Cites Governor Smith.

The most curious part of Leon Daudet's battle to retain the confidence of French Catholics, despite the fact that his journal, L'Action Francaise, has been placed on the index by the pope, is his appeal to the case of Governor Smith, of New York. The French royalist were put under the ban by the pope, because their commander-in-chief, Senator Mauras, is an avowed free-thinker in religious matters. However the great majority of the French royalists are ardent Catholics. They have replied to the pope's interdict with a non-possimus when the Holy Father demanded a break with their leader. For a time the royalists seemed overcome and beaten. Then suddenly Leon Daudet remembered the case of Governor Smith, whom he cites daily, now as opposed to the pope, as a free-thinker in purely American politics. There are, however, some differences in this respect between New York and France. The Vatican has considered the influence of French politics when the occasion presented itself. Such a short time ago as January 1, the Papal Nuncio at Paris, Mgr. Magliani, in a letter to the French president, praised M. Briand's foreign policy, the conservatives in France regarded as pro-German and extreme dangerous for the future of France.

Tense Atmosphere.

"Dancing on a volcano" has ceased to be a mere metaphor for Parisians. They got used long ago to dancing with revolution at their doors and rumors of revolution ringing in their ears, and deadened by the wild clash of jazz. But now, they are, if not actually on a volcano living in a city subjected to the tremors of a permanent earthquake. Some people are going mad. Others are huddling on the border line. Most of them, however, are blissfully ignorant of the peril to which modern life exposes them. A prominent scientist, Dr. Rubinovitch, warns people that the city of Paris is perpetually shaking, vibrating, trembling exactly as if it were being shaken by an earthquake. The cause is the increasing trepidation of traffic, the tens of thousands of motorists, crisscrossing the city through the drivers' causing pandemonium on their "kiazons" and exhausts, the subterranean tunneling of the city for the ever-expanding subway system, the cause every building along their route to rock and shiver. All this has a disastrous effect on the organism of women, children and temperamental men. No one living in Paris now can have any rest at home. The nerves are subjected to a constant strain which must sooner or later upset the strongest constitution. A permanent state of nervousness is declared by the inhabitants of regions visited periodically by earthquakes and who are no less susceptible to the shocks of modern life. The nerves suddenly mad, throw themselves out of the windows, murder their neighbors or rush wildly, aimlessly across the country.

INQUIRY INTO DRY SITUATION

BY JOHN J. BOYLAN.

United States Congressman from New York.

(John J. Boylan was born at New York City. He was actively engaged in the real estate business in the metropolis until 1910, when he was elected a member of the New York assembly. He served in the lower house for two years, 1910 to 1912, and from 1913 to 1922 in the New York senate. Boylan was elected a member of congress from the fifteenth New York district in 1923. He is a democrat.)

If after seven years of enforcement of two adjacent states, the prohibition of the dry laws, the prohibition machine reeks with bribery and corruption, as Seymour Lowman charges, I think the people are entitled to know the facts.

Congress and the public have a right to know how the executive arm of the government is carrying out its prohibition law.

But if an optimistic dry can see no brighter prospects for prohibition than half a century of waiting, it is about time we put an end to the farce.

Though the Volstead act should be repealed, it ought at least to have a law that can be enforced without corruption and weakening the government or destroying public confidence in our officials.

If things are as bad as Lowman says—and Secretary Mellon has not contradicted or denied his subordinate's assertions—we need a more drastic action not only of prohibition but of the fitness of the men trying to enforce it.

Color music. Mrs. Mary Hallowell Greenwell has been experimenting with color music for many years. She starts from the thesis that color harmony can influence human emotions just as sound harmony does.

After years of experimentation, Mrs. Greenwell has completed a sort of color organ, which she plays with keys and stops. She is going to install her organ in a tower on her estate at Wildwood, N. J., and play color tunes for her friends.

The idea of color music is not altogether new at this time, but it was quite novel when Mrs. Greenwell announced her theories and discussed plans for her organ, back in the days of the world war. Since then many music makers have borrowed the pioneer's idea, and some of them claim to have used the color music successfully.

THE GEORGIAN LOOK AROUND.

How the Taxpayers are Forced To Cough Up the Costs of Government.

Those of us who are "free, white and twenty-one" and like to think ourselves practically tax-exempt, are prone to wonder why we should contribute to the support of government.

We think they are the sort of people who would all the benefits of government handed to them on a silver platter, and who would look upon the growls and howls of our fellow citizens over the burden of taxation as a "cuss" in the court.

He should study the state tax and the reports of the state's fiscal officers. In them he will discover that the legislature has authorized the state government to levy and collect 145 different items of taxes, licenses, fees and assessments, covering some 130 activities of daily life and independent of the state.

Drawing one's breath outside of city limits, complaining about the "high cost of government," and "cussing" the court, in private, with no dictaphone in operation, are the only untaxed privileges a Georgian now has.

He must pay the state for being doped up in a beauty parlor, for riding a bicycle, for dancing in public, for stopping in a hotel, for buying an automobile, for getting a license, for getting one's pants pressed, for showing sleight-of-hand tricks, for sticking one's head in a machine, and for munching hot-dogs at a wiener stand.

The Burden Is Home-Made.

As above mentioned, the state taxes 145 different properties and privileges. Some of the counties, such as Fulton, Chatham, Bibb and Richmond, city and county assessments as 105 items, and cities and towns are also allowed to levy upon 175 kinds of real and personal properties and individual occupation privileges.

These together make up 425 several levies distributed among the inhabitants of the state, and sometimes for the same privilege—to the federal, state, county and town units, and then to a road and an independent school district.

The federal direct taxes upon individuals are negligible as a rule; the state taxes are in the main, and especially in Georgia, not onerous; but county, city and special assessments have grown so rapidly and extravagantly in recent decades as to make the burden of taxation for the average citizen an oppressive one.

Just to show how the public has to pay for government services, it is opportune to state what the Associated Industries of Missouri recently discovered in that state.

They found that the clerks of the circuit courts, similar to our Georgia superior courts, are authorized to collect 47 varieties of fees; the clerks of the county courts, 33 varieties; the justices of the peace charge 33 different fees; sheriffs are entitled to 22 bites out of the public pie, and the coroners are entitled to 11.

These are all extra to the general tax lists of state, county and town.

I do not know how the fees allowed by the state are paid, but I imagine the above list in Missouri, but I imagine there is not a wide difference between the two states.

There is want hope that we Georgians will get tax relief from any legislative body in Georgia like the one now in session.

It hewed more about "the crushed tax payer" and imposed upon him heavier levies than any other general assembly that ever sat in the state's capital.

THE FLOCK OF VAMPIRE TAXES.

In some of the countries of the world has been brought into view that the schedules of all taxes, licenses, fees and assessments imposed by the federal, state, county, and local units of government, include more than 500 separate items. Of course, not every citizen pays all of these items directly; but indirectly, most of them pay for each one of them through the channels of trade and the services which from time to time he obtains from officers of the government.

HUGHES ON STATE RIGHTS

BY SAM W. SMALL

A question has been submitted to this column relating to the attitude of Judge Charles Evans Hughes on the very important question of state rights. The asker of the question seems to have a fear that Judge Hughes is a candidate for the presidential nomination next year, and happen to be elected to that high office, he would be friendly to the general republican sentiment in favor of renaissance federalism, or the centralization of increasing power in the federal government over the constitutionally reserved rights of the states.

The best information that I have concerning the views of Judge Hughes on this subject comes from speech which he delivered before the New York State Bar association in January, 1916, before he was nominated by the republican party for election in that year, and while he was yet in justice of the supreme court of the United States. The revealing part of that address was in these words:

"If we did not have states, we should have no country. We have now them, with the advantages of historic background, and in mastering the serious questions of local administration, we are at least the advantage of inalienable sentiment and cherished traditions; and we may well congratulate ourselves that the citizens of the forty-eight states, not a single centralized government, have given us a more perfect union than any other nation in the world."

The idea of a nation-state, the idea of states each autonomous in its local concerns, to preserve the essential system—without allowing state action to throw it out of gear—the requisite machinery for unity of control in national concerns demands the most intelligent appreciation of all the facts of our inter-related affairs, and for more careful efforts of cooperation than we have hitherto put forth."

Assuming that Judge Hughes still holds the point of view that he has voiced the above sentiments, we may further assume that he is not in sympathy with a general sentiment in favor of a national state, and that he is in favor of the powers of the central government.

Insurance Underwriters Hear Trust Fund Points Described by Attorney

Ohio Bank Counsel Says
Depositories Real Aid to Salesman in Capital City
Dinner.

Benefits of trust fund insurance to the insured and the beneficiaries were described Friday night by William A. Stark, counsel for the Fifty-third Union Trust company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, at a meeting of the Atlanta Association of Life Insurance Underwriters at the Capital City Club.

Trust fund insurance prevents the squandering of fortunes by the heirs, and provides for the life-long financial needs of the family of the insured. Mr. Stark declared. He quoted figures to show that in cases where insurance is not taken care of in a trust fund, that the proceeds of the policy are spent within seven years by the average family and that the family is then worse off than it had not been left a cent.

The trust fund department operated by a bank does not compete with life insurance companies, but rather aids the sale of insurance through co-operation, Mr. Stark pointed out. An insurance trust fund is a simple contract, wrapped up in a mass of legal verbiage, whereby a man makes the bank or trust company the beneficiary of his life insurance policy.

Under the insurance trust plan, the insurance money is administered by the officers of the trust company, who come into most intimate contact with beneficiaries and who are granted the right to use their own discretion with the purpose that they will, as near as humanly possible, use that money for the benefit of a man's dependents in the way he would want it used if he were aware of conditions in existence.

"If one could foretell the future, there would be no insurance trusts. But no man can foresee how after his death, his family may be affected by sickness, insanity, war and calamity of any kind; nor can he foresee how fast his sons will develop business ability or what success his daughters will have in their matrimonial relations."

The life underwriter of today is not the "cast-off" from some other business, as he was years ago, but he is a keen salesman, studying his business and devising plans to meet sales resistance that does not show itself in the open, Mr. Stark declared. "He is fast becoming a professional man and his office will be graced with a framed diploma."

THE UNION UNITS WAGE CUT PLAN

St. Louis, September 23.—(AP)—An announcement by a prominent coal operator that negotiations on the basis of a 30 per cent wage reduction would be made direct with miners instead of through the United Mine Workers, brought a sharp retort from union officials of Herrin, Ill., tonight in which the proposal was termed "absurd."

The operators, speaking through Joseph D. Lumanig, of the Lumanig Coal company, said they could not longer negotiate with union officials because the union would not agree to a wage cut.

The operators said they would appeal direct to the miners because union officials have refused to negotiate on the basis of a wage cut. The suspension, which has been effective since April 1, has resulted in the closing of virtually all the larger mines in southern and central Illinois. Repeated efforts to negotiate a new wage scale to replace the Jacksonville agreement have failed.

No after effects were discernible.

The ornithopter suffered considerable damage in the crash and must be repaired before the flight attempts can be resumed.

Yesterday's attempt came unexpectedly, since White at the first of the week had announced that he would experiment with the contraption no more until parts ordered from New York arrived, probably in about two weeks.

Wife of Broker In Gotham Dies In 15-Story Fall

New York, September 23.—(AP)—The body of Mrs. Alice Ardis, 24, who before her marriage less than a year ago was Alice Raffree of Chicago, was found on the pavement today, 15 floors below the bedroom window of her Fifth avenue apartment.

She was wearing several pieces of costly jewelry. Death was accidental, a medical examiner said. No one was injured.

Ardis was out of town on business, it was said at her offices. Mrs. Ardis had come to New York several weeks ago to see her mother and had known Ardis about five years. Ardis was divorced from his first wife in May of this year and married Miss Raffree in June.

Mrs. Ardis, it was learned recently, had been under a physician's care for a nervous ailment, and this fact led police at first to investigate the possibility that she might have taken her own life.

The statement, furnished to the press by Father T. J. Eaton, of the Mobile diocese, declares that the effort to extradite Father O'Connor from the state is "taken to every court in Canada and to every court in the United States, even to the supreme court before they abandoned the effort."

MYSTERIOUS KILLING REVEALED IN ILLINOIS

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution.)
Chicago, September 23.—The body of a man, believed to be James J. Valenti, with the head crushed by blows with a hatchet, was found this afternoon in a prairie in Stickney, a suburb of Chicago.

Chief of Police E. E. Reich, of Stickney, advanced a theory that the victim may have been slain because he accidentally discovered a band of moonshiners. In an old brick house near the body the police discovered a tangle of pipes such as are used in stills.

Two mushroom hunters stumbled over the hatchet with which the killing was committed. Searching through the woods near by they located the body. Apparently he had been dead for several days.

ATLANTAN IS NAMED TO WAR COMMITTEE

Birmingham, Ala., September 23.—(AP)—George Knowles, Putnam county farmer, of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, has accepted the chairmanship of the Birmingham district industrial mobilization committee, which would function in event of war, it was learned today.

Others appointed to the advisory board were Robert J. Travis, Savannah, Ga.; Robert Gregg, Atlanta; Lester F. Alexander, New Orleans, and F. J. Norris, St. Louis.

The new advisory committee will continue the formulation of plans for mobilization of industry in this district in case of war, according to Colonel Sewell, who has carried on this work for the past three years.

"For several years," Colonel Sewell said, "the ordinance department of the United States army has been actively engaged in the work of industrial mobilization. The department has been working closely to obtain as far as possible the cooperation of American industry in studying and solving the problems of promptly obtaining the necessary materials and supplies that would be needed in the event of a national emergency."

Last of South's
Battle Colors
Being Returned

Tallahassee, Fla., September 23.—(AP)—Three veterans of the armies of Grant and Sherman today turned over to the armies of Lee—a tattered banner of the Confederacy and the flag in the possession of the north.

Ell Bourdo, W. W. Alcorn and E. D. Potter, of Toledo, will compose the band which will again will "invade" the soil of the southland. This time the "invasion" will be a mission of peace and good will, and one which will result in restoration to the soldiers of Dixie of a fabric over which many fought and died.

The flag will be formally presented to the grand annual reunion of the Florida division, United Confederate Veterans, which opens at Marianna next Tuesday. The presentation ceremony will be held on the opening day.

The three Toledo veterans of the grand army are of the last six remaining men of the 14th Ohio regiment, which over 60 years ago fought the battle of Franklin, Tenn., and captured the flag of the Florida brigade.

Major General T. J. Appleyard, commander of the Florida veterans, will receive the flag on behalf of the Confederacy. Captain Charles A. Finley, of Live Oak, secretary of Florida's state grand army, will accept the flag for a brave leader who saw it taken, but did not live to see it returned.

O'Connor, the colors, taken from many years deposit among the valued possessions of the Soldiers' Memorial fund, will be brought to the state capital by a train from Tallahassee and formally presented to Governor John W. Martin, in the steps of the capitol. It will then be deposited in a glass case in the state house where other relics of the civil war are kept.

SONG OF CLOWN

CONSUL'S WRATH

Serajevo, Bosnia, Jugoslavia, September 23.—(AP)—This little town of the fateful name nearly witnessed a sudden diplomatic incident today between Italy and Jugoslavia when a laughter song sung by a Premier's Italian consul in the town launched an indignant protest with the Yugoslavian authorities, declaring that if the offending clown was not punished, Italy would take suitable measures to insure the dignity of its premier.

Alarmed at the vehemence of the Italian official's complaint and fearing repercussions from Rome, the local officials ordered the circus to leave town immediately. It did so and the clown is singing in a neighboring town, minus his skit on Mussolini.

Baby in Cleveland Tangle Captures Heart of Mother

Cleveland, Ohio, September 23.—(AP)—Gurgling and cooing her way into a mother's heart, the tiny bundle of humanity who has been the center of Cleveland's "baby tangle" for the past month was named "Georgia" today after she had been warmly accepted by Mrs. Sam Smith.

"She is a little angel and I will keep her," Mrs. Smith said as the month-old baby girl crinkled up her little nose and smiled while her mother cuddled her close to her breast.

Torn by doubt that the baby girl she nursed was not the child born to her August 22, but one substituted by hospital officials for the "boy" to whom she believed she had given birth, Mrs. Smith at first failed to respond to the baby's gurgling, cooing and smiling.

Hot disappointed tears splashed on the baby's cheeks at the mother's breast as her heart was torn by doubt.

Habeas corpus action, instituted by the child's father to recover his child, "George Smith," was dismissed yesterday in common pleas court, after Judge Carl V. Weyandt was convinced Mrs. Smith had the right after the hand of justice had done its part in solving the tangle, but today she was happy.

A little brother and three older sisters joined in the jubilation today to celebrate the entry of "Georgia" into their home. The parents said since they had named the baby George when they thought it a boy, they decided that no better name could be found for it than "Georgia."

GIRL, 15, CONFESSES ASSAULT TO MURDER

Avon Park, Fla., September 23.—(AP)—Rosa Mae Spradlin, 15-year-old confessed embryo bandit, today entered a plea of guilty when arraigned on a charge of assault with intent to murder in connection with her attack on Night Marshal Helm here when the officer broke up what the girl said was intended to be a robbery of the Seaboard Air Line station on Monday night.

She and her companion, Mrs. Mildred Spradlin, pleaded not guilty to a charge of breaking and entering, in connection with what was said to have been a raid on the home of a neighbor to secure the gun with which she sought to kill the marshal. Hearing on that count was set for Friday, September 30. Neither has made bond, which was set at $1,000.

The ancient pistol snapped as she pulled the trigger twice with the muzzle against the officer's ribs, she said, corroborating Helm's story.

Mercury Rise
And Sunny Sky
Seen for Today

Sunny skies and slightly warmer temperatures will prevail over Georgia today, the local forecast says.

The autumnal equinox came Friday as a south-southwest wind passed over the equator, dividing days and nights into equal 12-hour periods of light and darkness.

Equinoctial storms are largely mythical, weather men declare, since records of the past 50 years reveal no unusual disturbances at this time.

Friday saw a temperature range of 72 to 88 degrees, 1 degree above the low mark of the season, attained Thursday. These extremes may be raised a few degrees today.

Varsity, Rats To Scrimmage At Tech Today

Teams Groomed for Clash This Morning; Injured Men Back.

BY BEN COTHMAN.
It usually happens that when a varsity eleven scrimmages the frosh outfit that it's a case of the big boy meeting the little fellow. One glance at the squad of huskies Kid Clay and Mack Tharpe have been working with on the baseball field for the past week will tell the most uninitiated follower of the grid game that Tech has a frosh squad of as hefty proportions as the varsity.

Today the two teams will meet in the first of many long and healthy scrimmages. That it will be a battle goes without even the thinking of such a thing. A bunch of freshman footballers is about the cockiest group of young men on the face of the earth until it has gone through a long session with the varsity.

Whether Coach Alex will select a team that will probably start in the V. M. I. game, one who will use his many combinations is something that Alex and no one else knows.

Alex Takes Charge.
The varsity spent Friday afternoon in preparing for today's skirmish. Bill Fincher was absent—someone put forth the explanation that he was probably scouting the freshmen—and Coach Alex was directing the linemen in charging practice for a great while. The ends and backs were having a great mix-up with the side-backs working at taking out the ends and tackling on off-tackle plays.

Following an hour or so spent in this manner, the squad divided up into teams and a long signal drill ensued. The new men through their work with a snap and precision that speaks well for the work to come today. They haven't had a touch scrimmage since the middle of the week, and after today 150 or more Tech freshmen probably won't look upon life in general and playing football in particular in such a cocky mood.

Injured Back on Job.
The injured players with one or two exceptions are back in uniform and took part in Friday's workout.

The turf gymnastics under Don Miller have given way now to teach man going through his exercises under his own direction. Which usually brings on a great deal of trouble to the part of the players. Firpo Martin and Raleigh Drennon finished their loosening up before the rest of the squad Friday and indulged in a game—not original—that gave everyone present a good laugh. Remember when you were about four or five years old how you would play this game of "bean porridge hot," etc., where you slap your hands against those of your partner and then to your side. That's what Firpo and Raleigh were doing Friday afternoon, and today they'll probably be making some freshman wish it was a game of "bean porridge."

T.H.S., McCallie Clash In Opener Here Today

Atlanta's First Football Game of Season Starts at 3 O'Clock at Ball Park.

Football will make its formal debut in Atlanta this afternoon in the form of a tilt between the Smithies of Tech High and the McCallie team of Chattanooga. The scene will be Mr. Spiller's dell and the time 3 o'clock.

The Smithies with a full strength organization left over from last year, are all set for the lads from the fundamental state. Hopes are high for a winning team at the Smith institution this year, and the team is meeting a tough foe in its first game, if reports drifting down from Nooga are to be credited.

T. H. S. in Good Shape.
The past week has been spent by Tech High coaches in tapering off the pre-season work, and all the men are reported in good shape.

A large crowd is expected to attend this first game of the season, as Tech does not open up until next Saturday, and those fans who are in the habit of witnessing a grid encounter the last Saturday in September are expected to be present.

Just what Coach Tolbert will send into the opening game is problematical. There are any number of good men for each position and the line-up will probably see several changes before the game is over.

McCALLIE TEAM LEAVES FOR TILT.
Chattanooga, September 23.—Twenty-seven McCallie players left for Atlanta this afternoon with Coach George Griffin, former Tech track coach, to meet the strong Tech High team tomorrow in the season's opening engagement for both elevens. Several last-minute shifts have been made in the McCallie lineup and the team which takes the field against the Smithies will not be the same as the eleven generally regarded as the first team.

Captain Johnston, whose injury was expected to keep him on the sidelines, has recovered sufficiently to start the game, and will be at his old position at left half. In case he is unable to finish the game Marling will be shifted from quarter to half, and Red Gillespie will take Marling's place. Thurman will start at right half, and Russell Tate at full.

Squad Sent Through Third Practice Session of Season.

BY FRED McEACHIN.
Friday afternoon marked the third session of the Stormy Petrels' grid practice. There were about 40 candidates on hand for the workout, including one new arrival, Bob Shepherd, who has been detained from practicing on account of illness.

The afternoon's proceedings included the usual routine of punting, passing and exercises. Linsey Vaughn was passing the pigskin in mid season form and looked mighty good. Garlington, Martin, Clement and Wall were doing the kicking, while the backs were reeling and running the ball back. The boys looked good. Each of them were getting off many nice punts for good distances, and handled themselves in a fine manner.

Teams Selected.
After a short period of pace exercises by both line men and backs, two teams were selected and put to running signals. The first crew included Hutson, at center; Captain Guthrie and Goldsmith, guards; Perkins and Sims, tackles; Burford and Clement on the wing positions; on the backfield there was Garlington, quarterback; Taliferro and Fox, half backs, and Bob Shepherd at full.

On the second practice the first snap was at center, Malby and Coffee at guard, Gordy and Wilson, tackles, while Hancock and Sewell were on the ends. The ball teters consisted of Amos Martin, Vaughn, Bass and Wall.

The squad was given a brief talk by Coach Robertson and was informed that training rules were to be put into effect in the immediate future.

Today's workout has been slated for 9 o'clock this morning and consequently a lay-off is expected for the afternoon.

Mrs. Fraser Is Defeated In Semi-Final

Loses to Mrs. Horn in Next to Last Round by Score of One-Up.

Garden City, N. Y., September 23.—(AP).—The younger generation of women golfers will have its fling tomorrow when Miss Maureen O'Connell, of Haworth, N. J., and Mrs. Miriam Burns Horn, of Kansas City, Mo., play for the women's amateur championship of the United States. Miss O'Connell is barely 20 years of age, while Mrs. Horn is in her very early 20s.

To win the right to travel over the long road of 56 holes over the closely trapped Cherry Valley course the finalists had to dispose of two visiting players from Canada, young in years but old in golf. Miss O'Connell defeated Miss Ada MacKenzie, of Toronto, 2 up and 1 to play, while Mrs. Burns won from Mrs. Alexa Stirling, of Ottawa, 1 up.

Miss O'Connell, who holds the open and closed championship of Canada, long has been a formidable figure in women's golf in the United States as well as in her own country, and Mrs. Fraser, who she was Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta, Ga., won the championship of the United States for the first time in 1910.

Miss O'Connell and Mrs. Horn have threatened before, but tomorrow will mark the first time either has advanced to the first tie of the final championship round. Mrs. Horn, when she was Miriam Burns, won the western women's championship in 1923 and was runner-up the next year. Miss O'Connell took the metropolitan women's championship cup to the White Beeches club last year and kept it there.

Secret Work To Start Soon At Georgia U.
Mrs. Fraser favored.
Mrs. Fraser was conceded an excellent chance to advance to the deciding match and believed that she would regain the crown she held in 1916, 1919 and 1920. Her hopes were finally buried deep in the sand of Cherry Valley's traps. The straight, dense and thickets of the Thion de La Chaume, the French and British champion, were not in her bag today. She developed a pull from the tee and through the fairway with the round and it bobbed up at intervals throughout her play.

Mrs. Horn, too, was guilty of lapses, but she was quite sure to take advantage of her opponent's mistakes and produced more sensational shots, perhaps, than any other player in the day's competition.

Mrs. Fraser played with deliberation. She studied her shots and took meticulous practice swings while Mrs. Horn seemed content to tear into the ball and let the divots fall where they would.

Mrs. Fraser after setting the pace with a birdie three holes in advance saw her opponent slip a hole in front of the first nine and add another at the tenth. The former champion missed a chance to get a hole back on the eleventh when she took three putts but when Mrs. Horn needed six at the twelfth and thirteenth the match was all over.

Costly Error.
Mrs. Fraser then made an error that probably cost her the match. Mrs. Horn hit a poor tee shot and found the ball in the rough. She was not near the 335-yard hole with her second. Mrs. Fraser was well out in the fairway with a fair shot to the green, but found a sand trap to the right of the green. She came out of this obstacle into the hole like it on the green. Opponent's shot landed on the next hole for Mrs. Horn's tee shot was in sand short of the 155-yard hole, but Mrs. Fraser also failed to reach the green from the tee and the hole was halved in four.

At the next Mrs. Fraser missed three shots in a row and went two down with but two holes to play. Mrs. Horn then continued the match by sending her second on the seventeenth over the green into a deep trap and taking two strokes to get out. Mrs. Fraser missed the green with her second but was on with her third and down in two putts to win.

All Wet.
French scientists report this was a wet summer, says cable. Tech, over there.

DIZZY AND WEAK FROM PAINFUL INDIGESTION

MY color was bad, and I suffered with intense pains in the pit of my stomach," says Mrs. J. H. Hillert, of Saint Paul, Va. "Often I would have had headache and hurt me so I would have to stay in bed."

"My tongue was coated, and I had bad taste in my mouth. I did not have a well day for weeks. I dragged it, in small doses after each meal, until I began to feel better. I could see that I was improving, so I kept it up until I felt like a person made over."

"I had been constipated more or less, but I did not know that I had become saturated with poison until I was in bed."

"Black-Draught was the very thing round, but had no strength at all. I tried many remedies, but nothing helped. "Everything I ate gave me indigestion. Gas formed in my stomach and made me feel very uncomfortable. My stool got worse, and I was often so dizzy I could not stand on my feet. "Some one suggested that I try Black-Draught. I had read of it, so I thought I would try it. I began taking

I needed. After I had taken it regularly for several weeks, all the bad symptoms disappeared. The dizziness left me. The bad gas pains quit coming, and I was able to eat anything I wanted to without suffering from it. I had no more headache. They Wouldn't Believe

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS

On the way to Donald Briery's house for luncheon Connie Elmore, Donald's fiancée, tells her friend Olive Weston that Donald stands a chance of inheriting a half a million from the estate of old Harrowby, a friend of Donald's father.

Olive and Connie share a flat in London. Olive is secretly in love with Donald but sincerely pleased at Connie's good fortune in winning him.

Sandie and Querk, solicitors handling the Harrowby estate, are crooked and plot to cheat Donald Briery of the fortune by having a spurious heir appear whose claim is prior to Donald's. In the midst of the plotting Augustus Briery, Donald's father, presumed to have died when the Titanic sank, calls on Sandie. Querk suggests to Sandie that he invite Briery to Harrowby house and there, with the assistance of Querk's tool Wade, dispose of Briery.

Connie decides to visit her old nurse, who is now caretaker of Harrowby house. Mrs. Jones is out but Connie finds the key and lets herself in to wait for her. She hears strange noises in the library and going to investigate she sees Mr. Sandie and another man kill Mr. Briery, whom she recognizes from his portrait. Running out of the house Connie stumbles into Mr. Querk. While telling her story Querk notices the bell and sends a signal to the murderers. Connie sees a policeman and calling him the three proceed to the library and Connie asks Querk to open the secret panel in the wall where she had seen the man place the body. It is empty. Querk accompanies her to the police station, where she tells her story to the police superintendent. Querk intimates that he imagined the scene and in desperation Connie goes to see Olive, who believes her story.

Querk requests Sandie to come to the superintendent's office and he presents his alibi which the police officer accepts. The two lawyers proceed to Wade's office where old man Turle and his son, the spurious heir, await them. The old man dies just after they walk into the office and Sandie and Querk leave by the back door.

The next morning Connie calls on Querk and meets young Jones in his office. She recognizes him as her old nurse's son but does not know that he has been posing as Henry Turle, Jr. Querk later pretends that Connie imagined the saw young Jones. He tells Olive that Sandie is about to bring a criminal suit against Connie unless Olive, as her nearest friend, has her committed to a private institution which he recommends.

INSTALLMENT XXXVI.

UNDER SURVEILLANCE.

The car drew up. The nurse sprang lightly out, and Connie, suddenly discovering that she felt physically weak, followed more slowly. They passed into the hall and Connie saw that although it was furnished in magnificent old oak it was modern in its arrangements and its many comforts.

"As a new arrival, you'll be expected to call on Matron first of all," said the nurse. "You'll like her—she's most charming."

The nurse led her through a glass door and there came to Connie the muffled sound of a typewriter; then along a short corridor to an open door on which the nurse tapped and was immediately told to come in.

"Miss Elmore, Matron."

A woman who, but for her snow-white hair, seemed more than 40 rose and offered her hand.

"How do you do, Miss Elmore? Won't you sit down while I bring you your things in?"

Connie murmured acknowledgement. The nurse disappeared.

"Well, now, what do you think about Manton House from the outside?" asked the Matron with a delightful smile.

"It's certainly very beautiful—amazing for an—"

"I know what you were going to say—for an asylum," the Matron chimed in. "Now do you know this word is one of the most serious difficulties we have to overcome. Of course, this is an asylum. An asylum, after all, is only a hospital. You, for instance, like most of our other patients, have come here because you are fatigued and overstrained. It is our job to make you well. If one can once forget that horrible work we generally succeed."

"It doesn't really frighten me," said Connie. There was something in the older woman's manner that invited frankness. "But, you see, I was sent here against my will—and that is bound to be a little upsetting, isn't it?"

"Yes, of course—except that everybody does things more or less against their will on doctor's orders. The point is this—you can call this an asylum or anything else you please—but remember this: You're free here to do almost anything you like. You can work or play, read or idle. You can have meals in the hall in company—or you can have meals served in private. The only definite rule is that you must be in the open air, unless excused by the doctor, for at least two hours a day. Beyond that, there are no more rules than there are in a hotel."

"It is certainly very different from what I thought," said Connie.

"Well, I may take it that we have made a good first impression," said the Matron humorously. "Get back to practical details—you will have your own particular nurse, who will be your guide, philosopher, and friend. She will show you the grounds and in every way look after your comfort. Any complaints you may have to make you make through her—except complaints of the nurse herself, which are made direct to me. Are you bringing your own maid?"

"No," said Connie.

"O, I'm glad to hear that," said the Matron. "Maids are so often a nuisance. You will have part of the services of one of our staff, who will look after your clothes. Now I will take you to your room."

She picked up a house telephone.

"Tell Nurse Flecker to go to suite 52," she ordered.

"Just one thing, please, Matron," said Connie. "I've told me enough for me to realize that this is an expensive place. It must be more than I can afford."

"I am afraid I cannot discuss that with you, Miss Elmore," said the Matron. "All such arrangements have been made by your solicitor."

"But—"

"If you're ready," said the Matron, and led the way from the room.

Connie would have insisted—and remembered that she was no longer in a position to insist upon anything.

In a flash she realized the inflexibility of the kindly woman with the white hair. She linked it up with the kindness of the nurse, and suddenly there came to her the eerie thought that the kindness, the cheeriness, the beauty of the grounds, the efficiency of the house, were so much mechanism. They were expensive and highly efficient substitutes for the bullying attendant, the padded cell and the stark white walls.

They passed through the hall to the opposite side and came to a lift shaft.

"Third floor," said the Matron to the uniformed page boy who took them up.

Connie followed the Matron along a carpeted corridor to the room that was to be hers.

It was a bed sitting room, furnished in a tasteful monotone of pale green. The furniture, apart from the bed, consisted of an armchair, a dressing table, a writing table, two collapsible chairs, all of them of the first quality. A bowl of roses on the writing table gave just the right touch of color.

In each wall were doors. The Matron opened one of them and disclosed a private bathroom.

"The other leads into your nurse's room—she's there if you should want her in the night," she explained, and passed through the big French windows, which opened onto a small balcony.

Connie followed her and drew a sigh of pleasure in the lovely landscape seen from the balcony. Then she noticed that the balcony, instead of ordinary railings, had bars which curved back to the side of the house so that one stood, as it were, in a cage.

"She knew from the matron's easy explanation, that her face had changed at the discovery."

"We have many patients suffering from shell shock," explained the Matron. "And shell shock, as you know, produces vertigo. Ah, here is Nurse Flecker! Nurse Flecker, this is Miss Elmore."

Connie acknowledged the introduction and glanced without interest at a middle-aged, dark-eyed woman, a little haggard, but bearing traces of former beauty. The dark eyes looked impersonally at Connie, looking again with a wistful interest, and—for an instant—something curiously like pity.

The instant passed and Nurse Flecker's expression was merely one of polite attention.

"Well, now, Nurse Flecker will make any arrangements you want," said the Matron, preparing to go. "By the way, you have an acquaintance in common. Nurse Flecker is an old friend of your solicitor, Mr. Querk."

"Oh, yes!" said Connie with a frown.

Mr. Querk had suggested Sir Theodore folks! Mr. Querk had made all the arrangements at Manton House; Mr. Querk was a personal friend of the nurse! There came to her the eerie feeling that henceforward, day and night, she would never escape from the surveillance of Mr. Querk.

"You look a little tired," Miss Elmore, said Nurse Flecker, and Connie thought she had a pleasant voice—or was it merely again the impersonal, efficient, paralyzing kindness of Manton House? "I will send a maid to unpack. Would you like to sit on the balcony and rest before lunch?"

ON DRY REPORTS

Chicago, September 23.—(AP)—Wheat spread need of moisture in Australia together with insufficient rainfall in Argentina, led to higher prices for wheat. Corn values went up as a result of nearly complete absence of frost which had been predicted. Wheat closed 7-5c to 1c off on 1-4c decline to an equal setback to a rise of 2-5c.

Critical drought conditions were reported today to be affecting the wheat crop throughout Australia, except the western part of the commonwealth. The outlook for the southern hemisphere was worsened by word that wheat in Argentina was being cut by a late frost.

Meanwhile, unexpected autumnal quotations at Liverpool similar to the first time since June, 1926, tended further to hamper wheat here, and so likewise did the price bulge which developed in Germany and 14,000,000 bushels of wheat in the United States.

On the price bulge which developed in Germany and 14,000,000 bushels of wheat in the United States, the market was somewhat unsettled.

Provisions were irregular, influenced by the one hand by corn weakness and on the other by an uptick in hog values.
